

The state of bicycling counting 2018

In 2018, Eco-Counter and the League of American Bicyclists' Bicycle Friendly Community (BFC) program conducted a survey to examine the current state of bicycle counting. The survey provided a timely and much needed understanding of the way communities across the country do (or do not) approach bike counting, including the challenges and opportunities they face. Without further ado, here's what we learned ....
